

Licensed Practical Nursing (LPN) students, funded by NWC, walk in Skagit Valley College's graduation. They have diverse backgrounds: Iraq War veterans, dislocated workers, low-income adults, single mothers, and immigrants. Once they pass their licensure exam their opportunities are just as varied; pediatrics, cancer care, and working as LPNs while pursuing an RN degree. Working together to become LPNs they shared a strong desire to help others. Because of the opportunity provided through NWC, they have an opportunity to do just that while working in a high-wage, high-demand field.